The Matsukawa-Bishi (pine barked diamond pattern) symbolizes perseverance and the pine is a symbol of good fortune. The motif was also popular as a Sashiko design for garments. The pattern, by Eastwind Art (now out of print), features a beautiful flat-diamond shape. It looks intricate and complicated but the construction process has been simplified and includes a little “secret” in putting it together! Rotary cutting and machine piecing skills are a must. Class fee includes the Eastwind Art pattern, removable labels, template plastic and handouts for two additional sizes.

Supply list available at time of registration. Class size is limited.

Advance Beginner & Up.

Registration is February 3.
